What is a Psychological Evaluation?

A psychological evaluation is a comprehensive assessment of how an individual thinks, learns, processes information, regulates emotions, and functions in daily life. Through interviews, questionnaires, record review, and standardized testing, a psychologist examines cognitive, academic, emotional, behavioral, social, and adaptive functioning to better understand an individual's unique strengths and challenges.

The goal is not simply to provide a diagnosis—it is to develop a clear understanding of how a person's brain and behavior work together and to create practical recommendations that support success at home, school, work, and in everyday life.

How Evaluations Can Help:

An evaluation can help provide diagnostic clarity, guide treatment, and support access to appropriate accommodations and services. Some accommodation examples include, but are not limited to:

- School accommodations and supports
- IEP or 504 Plan eligibility and services
- Special education planning
- Gifted programming
- Academic intervention planning
- Workplace accommodations
